By Michelle LeBaron July 2003 Culture is an essential part of conflict and conflict resolution. Cultures are like underground rivers that run through our lives and relationships, giving us messages that shape our perceptions, attributions, judgments, and ideas of self and other. Though cultures are powerful, they are often unconscious, influencing conflict and attempts to resolve conflict in ...

Treating constructive criticism as 'just another data point' helps us to take feedback on board without becoming defensive. To close gaps in our skill set, we must then embark on a learning plan, making an intentional effort to practise the competencies we want to improve (such as active listening or controlling negative emotions).
